

THE HARTFORD HOTEL

PRIVATE DINING – LE MANS 2007

‘One of the most curious scenes at the covered pits was the “Hartford Hotel”. The makers of the well-known shock absorber, having no motor supplies to give out (their truck did not arrive from England), had fitted up their replenishment station as a restaurant and hotel. As the tired wet and muddy drivers came off their cars they were hauled into the hotel, regaled with hot onion soup, found plates of hot roast chicken in front of them, and were called upon to assist in emptying innumerable bottles of champagne’.
